There has been a regularly walked / run path for decades – probably since the quarry started operations and made the definitive path unsafe.
It has in my opinion become a highway because of the decades / generations of users of this path.
In addition both secondary schools – Maidenhill and Wycliffe have used these routes for many years for their cross country courses.

When we moved to the area in 2009, we began using the trodden way up the hill assuming that it was a public right of way. When the garden of a house in Rosedale was sold they posted a notice advising of a change in public right of way which at that time went through the garden. Only then did I discover the actual, completely impassable, route of the public right of way. The fact of it having been included in the garden is suggestive of it being out of use at the time the houses were built.

We have used this route for nearly 2 decades (my husband says) with no problem. In fact, the previous landowner kept the fields well kendered with clear paths throughout. This is one of the "busiest" routes as it connects Brown Lane with Rosevale with Doreen Woods in a safe way.

The official public right of way has not been in use for at least 40 years. The official public right of way appears to run through steep sided woodland and until March 2023 there was a fence blocking its path. This has now been smashed down by the new owner. The claimed route is in use by many elderly people who would otherwise not be able to gain access to Doverow Hill.
