Dear Rye and Jane

You asked me to write about walkers in the field accessed from Cotswold Green, Stonehouse from 2013 to 2019 when we owned it.

Whenever I was in the field checking the cattle I would politely ask walkers if they would please keep to the footpaths. If they asked where the footpaths went I would tell them.

I did not at any time encourage walkers to stray from the public footpaths on any other routes.

Kind regards

Dear Rye and Jane

I jointly owned the field accessed from Cotswold Green, Stonehouse from 2013 to 2019 with my partner Sid Oakhill.

I became very reluctant to go to the field to check our cattle as I didn't like going there because of the walkers. It was very difficult trying to get people to keep to the two footpaths. In the end this was part of the reason we sold the field to you as we got fed up with the walkers not keeping to the paths and their approach that they could walk where they liked.

I did not at any time encourage people to walk where there was no public footpath.

Kind regards
